FIERCE BATTLES FOR STALINO

MOSCOW SAYS GERMAN PUSH SLOWED

THE Germans last night claimed to have captured the island of Dago, in the Gulf of Finland, and Stalino, described as "one of the most important arms centres in the Donetz Basin."

Moscow, however, while reporting that the main onslaught of the German attack is in the direction of Stalino, says that it has not been captured, and that the Soviet troops are putting up a heroic resistance.

Moscow radio, summarising the position, said: "The struggle for the town of Stalino and for the Donbass district becomes tenser every day."

On the Leningrad front the German High Command's review mentioned that "exceedingly hard fighting" was involved in the taking of 5,000 pillboxes in hand-to-hand fighting, and the clearing of minefields containing more than 80,000 mines.

Of the fighting in the Kalinin, Mojaisk and Maloyaroslavets directions, which was again particularly fierce during Monday night, Moscow radio last night said that in the Mojaisk direction the Germans were slowed down.

"On the left flank, in the direction of Maloyaroslavets, Moscow radio said, "the efforts of the enemy have been directed against an important inhabited centre. By the evening of October 18th he succeeded in pressing back our troops. On October 19th the enemy repeated his attacks in the same direction, but met with stubborn resistance and was thrown back, leaving on the battlefield many burning tanks and hundreds of killed. In the Kalinin direction a number of places have changed hands many times. In the end the enemy was thrown back three kilometres and was forced to leave his advantageous position on the hills."—(Reuter.)

THE BALTIC BATTLES

BERLIN, Tuesday.—The capture of the Island of Dago is claimed in a special announcement from the Fuehrer's headquarters.

The announcement says:—"Dago has been captured. All the Baltic islands are thus in German hands, and the whole of the Baltic region is free from the enemy. In exemplary co-operation with units of the Navy and the Luftwaffe an infantry division on October 12 succeeded in making a surprise landing on the southern extremity of the island. In stubborn separate battles lasting ten days the island has now been cleared of the enemy. Three thousand prisoners fell into our hands and six coastal batteries were destroyed. Remnants of the enemy in occupation were annihilated by units of the Navy and Air Force when they attempted to escape by sea.

NEW POSITIONS

MOSCOW, Tuesday.—After the Germans had resumed their advance against Taganrog with fresh reinforcements the Soviet retired to previously prepared positions, according to the Pravda war correspondent. Describing the fighting after the capture of Mariupol, the correspondent says: "The Germans encountered strong resistance. They thought to outflank our fortifications and tried to strike at our flanks, but the defenders firmly held their ground. Then the Germans lost hope of breaking through to Taganrog along the direct route, regrouped their forces, drew up fresh units and undertook a deep detour of our right flank, evidently in order to continue the offensive against Taganrog from the north. Hardly had they reached the area from which they intended to strike when they again met with strong resistance. Large forces were hurled into action on both sides. Although the enemy occupied an advantageous position and possessed numerical superiority, he had to retreat with considerable losses. Our troops recaptured several large populated points. Meanwhile the Fascists continued to draw up fresh reinforcements and resumed the advance against Taganrog. Under the pressure of a numerically superior enemy, our troops retired to previously prepared lines."—(Reuter.)

BEHIND LENINGRAD

BERNE, Tuesday.—Four thousand troops, supported by heavy artillery and 'planes, were used by the Russians in a recent sea landing behind the German lines in the Leningrad sector, according to the Milanese Corriere della Sera. Soviet pilots swooped to within a few yards of the ground to machine-gun the German positions. It is added, the paper reports, that the Russians have taken the initiative in this sector.

Quoting the experiences of German soldiers on the Leningrad front, the Berlin correspondent of the Gazette de Lausanne says that such landings were usually made at night or at daybreak. In this way the Russians tried to gain the advantage of surprise. The Soviet units approached in rowing boats, he says, often just before the Soviets were due to land heavy guns of the fortress of Kronstadt came into action. A series of landing attempts were also prepared by low-flying attacks on the quay, where the troops were intended to gain a foothold."

GERMAN REVIEW

BERLIN, Tuesday.—In a report from Hitler's headquarters, the German High Command to-night reviews the operations on the northern front in the past three months. The report says:—"By the occupation of the Island of Dagoe the Baltic area is now completely cleared of the enemy, and thus the time has come to report on the operations which have been in progress on the northern sector since the beginning of August. After making a breach in the Stalin line, the Army group of Field-Marshal von Leeb, in collaboration with the Air Fleet of General Keller, was faced with the task of defeating the enemy forces between Lakes Ilmen and Peipus, cutting off the fortress of Leningrad in the south and clearing the mainland and Baltic islands of the enemy.

"In spite of a strong persistent threat to their eastern flank, the main body of the army of General Busch and the mechanised armies of General Hoeppner, first of all, swung northwards.

"In exceedingly hard fighting in pathless woods and swamps the fortified positions of the enemy between Lakes Ilmen and Peipus were penetrated, involving the taking of 5,000 pill-boxes in hand-to-hand fighting and the clearing of extensive minefields, containing more than 80,000 mines.

"In further violent hand-to-hand fighting strong enemy forces had to be annihilated north of Lugs before the attacks on the fortifications of Leningrad could begin. All attempts of the enemy to prevent the encirclement of this town by diversions on both sides of Lake Ilmen were unsuccessful.

COUNTER-ATTACKS

"In counter-attacks south of Lake Ilmen the main danger was averted by the destruction of numerous enemy divisions. Simultaneously with these operations the army of General Von Kuechler advanced west of Lake Peipus on a broad front as far as the coast of the Gulf of Finland. After the capture of Tallinn and Pernau, on the Gulf of Riga, landings were started on the Baltic Islands, while strong units of the army north of Lake Peipus advanced to take part in the fighting for the encirclement of Leningrad. In the operations leading to the capture of the Baltic Islands, the naval forces under the command of Admiral Carls effectively co-operated. Apart from transporting landing troops, the naval forces, by attacks in the Gulf of Finland, also averted the threat of an outflanking movement by Soviet naval units, swept the enemy mine barrage in the waters around the Baltic Islands, and by shelling enemy positions from the sea, took a part in the land fighting.

300,000 PRISONERS

"In heavy fighting, supported by the indefatigable air formations of Air Marshals Richthofen and Foerster, the detachments of the army and of the S.S., composing the army group of Field-Marshal von Leeb, have, since the report of the High Command of August 16, taken 300,000 prisoners and captured or destroyed 1,581 tanks and 4,063 guns. With the encirclement of Leningrad, they have performed their most important task. The desperate attempts of the Soviet forces encircled in Leningrad to break out have been repulsed with heavy enemy casualties. Substantial sections of the army group and the air fleet of General Keller have for some time been freed for service in operations at other points on the Eastern front."—(Reuter.)

RUSSIAN CITIES

LONDON, Tuesday.—A Berlin despatch says:—Of 81 large Soviet cities, with 27,400,000 inhabitants, 17, with 5,700,000 inhabitants, are already in German hands, while nine others, with 9,900,000 inhabitants, including Moscow with 4,300,000, Leningrad with 3,400,000, Charkov with 800,000, and Rostov with 500,000, were directly threatened. It is claimed that during four months of war 3,200,000 prisoners were taken, or 26,230 daily—about two divisions per day.

German minesweepers have attacked Soviet light naval units at the entrance of the Gulf of Finland, says the German News Agency. A Soviet E-boat was damaged by artillery fire, and a sailing ship, escorted by the E-boat, was sunk, it is claimed.

Finnish air formations again bombed the Murmansk railway on Sunday and Monday, the Finnish News Agency announced, claiming direct hits on a troop train, a bridge, warehouses, and railway lines.—(Reuter and Associated Press.)

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

The Soviet midnight communiqué states:—"During October 21 our troops fought the enemy along the whole front. Particularly intense fighting continued in the directions of Mojaisk, Maloyaroslavets and Kalinin. The Germans undertook several attacks on our lines, hurling fresh units into action. Our troops repulsed the enemy attacks. Nineteen German 'planes were destroyed on October 20 (Monday). We lost seven 'planes. Our troops operating in the Leningrad direction of the front are inflicting heavy losses on the enemy, annihilating his manpower and equipment. Within the last three days, in the sector held by Nikolaev's unit, Soviet gunners annihilated 92 lorries containing enemy infantry, 10 guns and trench mortar batteries, 9 machine-gun nests and one ammunition dump.

CORK BAKERS RESUME WORK

SETTLEMENT EXPECTED

THE Cork bakery stoppage ended unexpectedly last evening, at least temporarily, and the citizens, who were without bread on Monday and yesterday, will have their usual supplies to-day. The men resume work immediately, pending further conferences, at which it is hoped a permanent solution will be found.

The unexpected termination of the stoppage happily followed a suggestion made yesterday by Mr. C. F. Murphy, President of the Cork Chamber of Commerce, who had previously, on Sunday night, brought the parties together without result. Yesterday Mr. Murphy, expressing concern at the position in which the hospitals and other institutions found themselves, appealed to both sides to arrange, without prejudice, to bake and supply sufficient bread for these. Mr. Murphy met both sides, and it was but a step further to suggest a general resumption of work pending a conference. Both sides accepted this proposal, and prompt arrangements were made for an immediate return to work, so that the city's bread supply will be normal this morning. In order to ensure this, the workers resumed late last night.

M.P. DENIED RIGHT TO VISIT IRELAND

MR. MORRISON DEFENDS HIS ACTION

THE Home Secretary (Mr. H. S. Morrison), in the House of Commons yesterday, defended his refusal to grant a permit to Mr. J. McGovern (I.L.P.) to visit Ireland in connection with the case of Mr. Cahir Healy.

In the course of the debate, Sir Hugh O'Neill (Unionist, Antrim) expressed the view that it was a question of national importance for a member of Parliament to exercise his rights to investigate the case of a person detained under Defence Regulation 18B. He felt that the Home Secretary would be wise to allow the permit to be issued.

Mr. Churchill, winding up the debate, resented the suggestion that the Government was adopting Fascist methods. He described accusations against Mr. Morrison of showing partiality as "most unfair."

Mr. Morrison finally refused to grant a permit.

"SEEMED TO BE A FARCE"

Sir Irving Albery (Conservative), who raised the question, said that as a great many M.P.s appeared to have had no difficulty whatever in visiting Northern Ireland, for various causes, the restriction seemed to be a farce. He asked what would be the position if a newspaper wished to send a correspondent, and said that a newspaper had no prior right over M.P.s. He believed the Home Secretary was a man of strong prejudices, and he doubted his wisdom in personally administering some of the regulations.

Sir Hugh O'Neill (Conservative, Antrim) said that surely it could not be said that it was not the essential business of a member of Parliament to desire to travel to Northern Ireland in order to take up a question of this kind. It seemed to him that the only consideration which ought to weigh with the Home Secretary would be if he thought that the member of Parliament concerned, was himself likely to do something prejudicial to the national security. So far as he knew, exactly the same considerations applied in the official regulations with regard to visits to Southern Ireland as to Northern Ireland, and if the Home Secretary, as he might, made the point that the reason why a permit was refused was because it included the request to visit Southern Ireland, he would ask why the regulations were framed to govern Ireland as a whole with the same principles for both North and South. He hoped that after he had heard the debate, the Home Secretary might think it wise to allow the permit to issue.

HOME SECRETARY'S REPLY

Mr. Morrison vigorously denied any suggestion that he had not administered the Defence Regulations fairly, pointing to the fact that he had released well over half the members of the British Union who had been interned. The responsibilities for detentions and releases under Regulation 18B could not be delegated.

When a person travelled to Northern Ireland they could not be sure that he would not cross into Southern Ireland. "Eire is not even like a British Dominion at war with His Majesty's enemies," said Mr. Morrison, "but is a neutral State, and, therefore, it is a far more serious thing in one way to allow a man to go to Dublin than it is to allow him to go to Australia or Canada, or even America, which is a friendly neutral country.

"It must be remembered that in Southern Ireland there are friends of ours, but—let us not hedge the fact—there are enemies of this country as well; and, moreover, in Dublin, unlike the capital of Australia, Canada, or South Africa, there is a German Legation, and that is a material consideration which the House really must take into account. If there was an M.P. for Northern Ireland—I do not know of one—who, I knew and believed, wanted to make contact with the German Legation, I would arrest him."

If an M.P. was given a right to go to Ireland without any question or restriction, that brought them to the position that if one or two members did go, and did harm and mischief, or committed grave indiscretions involving us in trouble, which is not difficult in Ireland, there would be questions about it.

REFERENCE TO DUKE OF BEDFORD

Pointing out that the Lords had as much right to privileges and liberties as the Commons, Mr. Morrison named the Duke of Bedford as "one noble lord whom I have not detained" and about whom he was saying nothing, "except that I am interested in his activities, and so long as I am Home Secretary, and so long as his opinions and activities are what they are, he will not go to Dublin." "If," he added, "there is to be no restriction, it would mean that the Duke of Bedford or any member of the House of Commons, whatever his opinion about the war effort, would automatically have the right to go to Ireland, and that would be dangerous."

Mr. Morrison said that Mr. McGovern's first application was to go to Ireland as Chairman of the Independent Labour Party for special observation. A few days later he stated that he had seen Mr. Cahir Healy in Brixton Prison and wanted to go to Ireland to investigate Mr. Healy's case. "I could not convince myself that a visit to Ireland by Mr. McGovern would affect, one way or another, Mr. Healy's case," said Mr. Morrison. "The only person who can argue that case is Mr. Healy himself, to whom every facility has been given. If Mr. Healy were to say that he would like Mr. McGovern to go, I will sympathetically consider the matter. I have no evidence at this moment that Mr. Healy has asked Mr. McGovern to go."

Mr. McGovern told the House that he saw Mr. Healy in Brixton Prison. Mr. Healy told him that an interpretation put by the Home Office on one of his letters differed from that which he himself held. The letter had been sent ten miles, opened, copies taken, and reposted. Mr. Healy also told him that there were five people who were closely associated with him in his political activities—two in Dublin and three in Northern Ireland. Mr. Healy expressed willingness that he (Mr. McGovern) should go to Ireland and see these people.

"I told him," continued Mr. McGovern, "that if I found that he or any of his associates proposed to do anything that was detrimental to the State I would wash my hands entirely of it, because I am opposed to war. At no time have I done anything to attempt to sabotage the efforts of this country, or aid the enemy in any way. My attitude to this war is the same as the Home Secretary's to the last. (Laughter and cheers.)

"When the Duke of Bedford went to Dublin he went for the express purpose of meeting the German Ambassador. Lord Halifax gave him permission. I did not want to meet and discuss anything with the German Ambassador, because I have nothing in common with these people."

Earl Winterton (Conservative) declared: "This case smells of political discrimination."

MR. CHURCHILL INTERVENES

When Sir Archibald Southby (Conservative) asserted: "Mr. Morrison is abrogating to himself the right to say whether it is in the national interest for M.P.s to do whatever they want to.

Mr. Churchill exclaimed: "He is not abrogating to himself any right. These duties have been placed upon him by the House. The House may be right or wrong, the House may change its mind, the House is all-powerful, but to say he is abrogating to himself these powers is most unfair.

"No part of the powers conferred on the Government in these times of trial do I view with greater repugnance that these powers of exceptional process against the liberties of the subject, contrary to the traditions inherent in British life. We all care about these rights, and are determined they will not be invaded upon by anything except the need of self-preservation which arises in time of war.

"I cannot conceive how Parliament can better keep the control and exercise of these abnormal powers than by insisting upon their being exercised on the discretion of a Minister. The Home Secretary has explained the whole position and given the House a feeling, first of all of the submissiveness of the Executive to Parliamentary institutions, and secondly of the care with which the powers are exercised. There can be no question of going beyond the powers of the House, which are overriding and inalienable. I particularly resent the suggestion that we are adopting the methods of a Fascist State. We are not. We are the servants of the House."

STATEMENT BY DUKE

The Duke of Bedford said last night: "When I went to Dublin to get peace terms in 1940, I went with Lord Halifax's permission—not officially, but privately.

"I can say further that the Government wrecked any chance of success of a negotiated peace by the very warlike speeches which Lord Halifax and other Ministers made afterwards. That being so, naturally I have no intention of going to Ireland or attempting to get in touch with the German authorities.

"If that opportunity of investigating the chances of a negotiated peace had been taken, the position of this country and her allies would be very much less desperate than it is at present. I think it probable that in six months' time I could say that with greater emphasis."—(Press Association.)

THE DUKE OF BEDFORD.

The Duke of Bedford, who succeeded to the title last August, was better known as the Marquis of Tavistock. He came into the public eye in March, 1940, when, as Chairman of the British Council for Chistian Settlement in Europe, he published a pamphlet headed "Germany's Peace Terms—Official." He was stated to have secured the terms from Germany through the German Minister in Dublin, but Berlin later denied any knowledge of them.

GOOD NEWS FOR FARMERS

LARGER EXPORTS OF CATTLE

NORMAL conditions will probably be resumed in the Irish cattle trade after next week. Last night it was announced that next week's quota of fat cattle for Britain had been increased, and that the store cattle trade would be resumed with unlimited export facilities to Northern Ireland.

DUBLIN MARKET

The store cattle will be sold next week in the Dublin Market, separate from the fat cattle, under licence, and requiring an export licence as well. After that it is hoped that the cattle trade will resume its normal channels in full.

Recently Mr. D. Twomey, Secretary of the Department of Agriculture, and Mr. Adams, Director of Agriculture, went to London to discuss the export trade, and yesterday they explained the results of their visit to a deputation representing Irish shippers, which they invited to the Department's offices in Dublin. The deputation was composed of Messrs. J. D. Sheridan, P. Donnelly, M. Towey and J. Flynn, of Dublin; Mr. L. Ferris, Sallins; Mr. G. Mullan, Kildare, and Mr. J. O'Kane, Drogheda.

THE STORE TRADE

Mr. Twomey informed the deputation that on and after Monday next store cattle would be allowed into Northern Ireland in unlimited numbers, but that, if any of these were meant for shipping to Britain, the shipper here must have all arrangements made and shipping space booked. Those not shipped would have to be disposed of in Northern Ireland.

Referring to the export of beef cattle to Britain, Mr. Twomey said that a large number of these would have to go inland for slaughter, as there would not be enough accommodation for them at the ports. Store cattle would be subject to a quarantine period of ten days on specified farms to guard against foot-and-mouth disease outbreaks.

Mr. Twomey asked the deputation to appeal to shippers to be careful in filling up declaration forms for exporting stock, as these, in the past, had often been very loosely filled in, and this would not be tolerated in the future. Careless filling in of forms had held up their efforts to combat the foot-and-mouth outbreak also.

Store cattle for export must have not less than three permanent teeth, and any animals not conforming to this requirement would be regarded as beef by the British authorities and confiscated as such.

OFFICIALS THANKED

The deputation was elected by a large meeting of shippers in Dublin, and at the close of the interview with the Department officials they, on behalf of all the shippers, congratulated the officials on their success in securing an increase, both in the price of fat cattle and in the export quota.

Shippers of cattle were appealed to strongly by the Department officials not to buy cattle near the scheduled foot-and-mouth areas.

The release of store cattle and the increase in the fat cattle quota will be warmly welcomed all over Eire, where thousands of cattle have been held in the hope of a resumption of something approaching normal trade. The new arrangements will also make a difference of many thousands of pounds to farmers.

GERMANS TO SHOOT FIFTY HOSTAGES

REPRISAL FOR SHOT GERMAN OFFICER

VICHY, Tuesday.—Fifty hostages are to be shot, it is announced by the German authorities in Paris, as a reprisal for the assassination of Lieut.-Colonel Holtz, Commandant of the Nantes district. Fifty more hostages will be shot if the culprits have not been arrested by midnight on Thursday. This measure is being taken, the Germans say, in view of the gravity of the crime.

General von Stuelpnagel, C.-in-C. of the Army of Occupation, has offered a reward of fifteen million francs for information leading to the discovery of the culprits.

The occupation authorities have arrested several personalities in Nantes who are regarded as being responsible for the maintenance of public order, including Philibert Duparc, Prefect of the Loire Inferieure; Colonel Naudin, Commandant of the French Gendarmerie at Nantes, and three officers of gendarmerie. M. Duparc was later released.

Two more Frenchmen were shot at Troyes to-day for being "illegally in possession of arms."—(Reuter.)

LATE NEWS

CRASHED INTO DUKE'S SUITE

FOREIGNER DETAINED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Wednesday.—A man with a foreign accent, who gave his name to the police as Gebhardt, broke into the private rooms of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel here shortly after they had returned to their suite from giving a reception to the Press.

The police detained the man after failing to establish his identity through a reporter whom he claimed to know. The police said that the man pushed his way into the lift with the Duke and Duchess, and in the bustle of their arrival, with their many aides, managed to get into the bedroom suite. The man, about 5 feet 6 inches tall and with a dark complexion, said he had "crashed" the Press reception, and helped someone in checking off the names of the guests as they arrived.

The police announced that the youth, whose full name they refused to reveal, had papers on him indicating that he was a member of the German-American Bund. He also had a quantity of German literature and the address of the German Consulate in New York.—(Reuter.)

BRITISH TANKER REPORTED SUNK

NEW YORK, Tuesday.—A British motor tanker, the Auris, has been sunk in the North Atlantic while carrying U.S. oil to England, marine circles here stated to-day.

No details were given, except that she was sunk "by enemy action."—(Reuter.)

OFFENSIVE OVER CHANNEL

CONVOY ATTACKED OFF DUTCH COAST

MONDAY night's heavy British raids on Bremen and other German towns were followed yesterday by offensive sweeps over German-occupied territory.

An Air Ministry communiqué last night stated:—

"Royal Air Force fighters have been active over the Channel and enemy-occupied territory during the day. Low-flying patrols early this morning attacked a number of targets, including an oil storage tank near Ostend, goods trains and oil-tank waggons in the Abbeville area, and hangars and German troops on the aerodrome at Le Touquet.

"Later in the morning squadrons of fighters carried out a sweep over the Pas de Calais, and destroyed twelve enemy fighters.

"Blenheim bombers attacked an enemy convoy, escorted by 'flak' ships, off the Dutch coast this afternoon. Results were difficult to observe, but smoke was seen coming from two of the ships attacked.

"From these operations three bombers and nine fighters are missing, but the pilots of four of the fighters are safe."

ENGLISH TOWNS BOMBED

CIVILIANS KILLED AND MISSING

German 'planes which were over a north-east of England coast area last night were met by heavy ground fire. A few aircraft took part in the raid, dropping flares, followed by bombs, at a number of places. Some of the bombs fell on open ground.

The attack lasted some hours. The bombers cruised over a scattered area, keeping well out of the way of anti-aircraft defences. At one town two houses were damaged.

In one village three people were killed, one is missing, and others were injured when houses were wrecked. At another village, where working-class houses were demolished, one person was killed and seven injured. Others are feared buried. A club and residential property was struck by a stick of bombs at a coast town, where there were more casualties. Five people were seriously injured, and rescue parties were still searching late for the two people not accounted for.

A few German dive-bombers, which crossed the Straits of Dover at dusk last night, dropped high-explosive and incendiary bombs on a south-east coast town, says the Press Association. Coming over singly, the raiders climbed to a great height, and then dived with their engines screaming. Green and yellow flashes lit the town as bombs exploded.

A Royal Air Force night fighter arrived soon after the first raider had dropped its bombs, and intercepted another bomber. People on the cliffs saw a chain of tracer bullets stream from the night fighter. Then there was a sound like a falling bomb. It could not be seen whether the raider had crashed. Several minutes later a stream of tracer bullets from another night fighter was seen over the Channel.

Houses in two roads were damaged by high-explosive and incendiary bombs. No fatal casualties were reported, but rescue workers began a search for two people supposed to have been trapped.

One of the German raiders, which was attacked with streams of tracer bullets over the coast, jettisoned its load of incendiaries near a village.

It fled out to sea, still pursued by the night fighter, which gave it another burst in mid-Channel.

Soon after the raiders had been chased back across the Channel by night fighters Royal Air Force bombers returned the visit by attacking Calais.

MARSHAL PETAIN ON BOMBING OF HAVRE

VICHY, Tuesday.—Marshal Petain has sent a message to the Havre Chamber of Commerce protesting, "as a Frenchman and a soldier," against the bombing of Le Havre, according to the Havre Correspondent of the Vichy News Agency.

The Marshal adds: "By reports and photographs I know the cruel fate of your town. Please assure the inhabitants and relatives of the victims that in their grievous trial the chief of the French State thinks often of them with sadness and solicitude."—(Reuter.)

BOMBED NORWEGIAN SHIP

MORE SURVIVORS

Five more members of the crew of the Norwegian vessel which was bombed and sunk on Sunday night last, arrived in Wexford last night from Blackwater, where they had rowed ashore in a lifeboat. They included the captain. Four other survivors—Chief Engineer K. Pedersen, Cook A. Pedersen, Gunner C. Denmead and Seaman J. Bruathen—who were landed at Rosslare on Monday, have returned to England.

The men who were landed at Blackwater were: Captain S. Martenessen, Chief Officer H. Hansen, Second Officer H. Wilhelmsen, Seaman R. Antonsen, Donkeyman A. Hagebu and Fireman G. Imuy. They will be accompanied to Dublin to-day by another member of the crew, who had been landed in Rosslare and was under treatment in Wexford Hospital.

Three dead members of the crew were interred in St. Ibar's, Crosstown, Wexford. They were:—Gunner John Stanley, Fireman Otto Lei and Mess Boy Patrick Tierney, of Workington, Cumberland.

IRISH POULTRY EXPORTS

NEW ARRANGEMENTS IN BRITAIN

New arrangements are being made in Great Britain for the handling of supplies of poultry, turkeys and rabbits from Eire and Northern Ireland from November 17 to secure a more equitable distribution of supplies and the elimination of irregular dealings, says the British Food Ministry. Existing licenses for the importation of poultry and rabbits from Eire will be withdrawn, and supplies of poultry, turkeys and rabbits from there will be canalised through a trade organisation in Britain—the Association of Wholesale Distributors of Imported Poultry and Rabbits, Ltd., which is being formed, at the request of the Food Ministry, from all wholesalers who imported in 1938.

AMERICAN VESSELS TORPEDOED

TWO BOATLOADS OF ONE CREW MISSING

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—President Roosevelt announced to-day that an American freighter, the Lehigh, was torpedoed on Sunday night near the southern end of the African bulge.

The President told his Press Conference, according to Reuter, that one boatload of survivors had been picked up, though information was lacking as to the number of persons on the torpedoed vessel. Two other boats missing were being searched for.

A later message stated that an American-owned ship, the Bold Venture, had been sunk near Iceland on Thursday, and that seventeen of the crew had been landed at Reykjavik.

Mr. Roosevelt said the survivors of the freighter Lehigh picked up believed that no one was killed, though some were wounded by the explosion of the torpedo.

The Lehigh is a ship of about 5,000 tons, which had discharged a cargo at the Spanish port of Bilbao and was running empty on a trading voyage to the Gold Coast.

The President left no doubt that he was convinced the Lehigh was torpedoed by a German submarine. He said sternly that Mr. Cordell Hull was dead right when he called such activity piracy.

When a reporter asked whether it was known who was responsible, the President replied scoffingly by inquiring: "Who do you suppose? Certainly it wasn't a British, American, French or Argentine submarine."

President Roosevelt said the Lehigh was flying the U.S. flag when she went down.

ANOTHER SHIP TORPEDOED

NEW YORK, Tuesday.—An American-owned ship, the Bold Venture, flying the Panama flag, has been torpedoed en route from Baltimore to England, well-informed marine circles report.—(Reuter.)

The Bold Venture was the former Danish freighter Alsund, seized by the United States on March 30 this year.—(The Associated Press.)

The State Department announced later that the Bold Venture was sunk near Iceland last Thursday.—(Reuter.)

TO ARM SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Tuesday. — Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, to-day said that he believed the Neutrality Act provision which bans United States merchant vessels from specified combat zones would be repealed or modified.

His statement was made to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, when he specifically urged the repeal of the sections of the Act which prohibits the arming of merchant vessels and prohibiting their entry into specified combat zones. "When American ships are being wantonly and unlawfully attacked with complete disregard to life and property it is absurd to forego any legitimate measures that may be helpful towards self-defence. It is especially absurd to continue to tie our hands on the provision of the law which prohibits arming our merchant vessels for their own defence," he said.

Mr. Cordell Hull, Senator Allen Barkley, the Senate majority leader, and Senator Tom Connally, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, conferred with President Roosevelt, after which Senator Barkley said that the Government forces "will go ahead as planned" with hearings on the Neutrality legislation limited to lifting the ban on arming merchantmen.—Associated Press.

GAS AND COAL STRIKES

BIRMINGHAM (ALABAMA), Tuesday.—A strike of 800 workers at an industrial gas works here caused a fuel shortage that closed some twenty factories employing about 15,000 men, and stopped production of shells, bombs and other vital defence material.

About 20,000 more workers are idle in a coal strike, which also threatened to close down other mills, as a result of fuel shortage, unless workers and owners reached agreement within a fortnight. An industrial spokesman said the gas shortage brought "the defence programme in Birmingham to a standstill except for three big iron and steel plants which manufacture their own gas."—(The Associated Press.)

SINKINGS REPLACED

SAN PEDRO (CALIFORNIA), Tuesday.—Rear-Admiral E. Land, Chairman of the United States Maritime Commission, stated to-day that American ship construction had caught up ton for ton with the sinking of Allied shipping. — (The Associated Press.)

KEARNY WAS ON CONVOY DUTY

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—Admiral Stark to-day advised the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to day that the United States destroyer, Kearny, was engaged on convoy duty when torpedoed, according to members of the Committee. Apparently, however, there is some disagreement among those who heard the Admiral's evidence as to whether the Kearny was escorting American or British vessels.—(Reuter.)

EARLIER CLOSING OF SHOPS

MR. LEMASS TO MEET DEPUTATION

A deputation of Dublin businessmen will meet Mr. Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce, to-day to discuss the earlier closing of shops in the interests of economy.

Earlier closing has been mooted by the Minister with a view primarily to saving electric current.

Opinion in business circles on the subject is by no means unanimous, the view being expressed by some shopkeepers that a curtailment of the normal business day inevitably will lead to unemployment.

AIR RAID SHELTERS IN BELFAST

The Northern Ireland Minister of Public Security (Mr. J. C. McDermott, K.C.) stated in the Northern Parliament yesterday that there has been a great improvement in regard to the provision of air-raid shelters in Belfast. The number has been more than doubled.

NORTHERN WORKERS IN BRITAIN

Replying to Mr. J. Beattie (Lab.) in the Northern Parliament regarding the conditions of employment in Great Britain now being offered to unemployed women between the ages of 21 and 55, Mr. John F. Gordon, the Minister of Labour, said that practically all the positions referred to were in three undertakings, which give minimum guaranteed wages, ranging from 41s. to 50s. per week to women of 21 and upwards. The actual wages paid, including overtime, averaged about 60s. a week, and the cost of board and lodging was about 25s. a week. In the largest of these undertakings one week's holiday, with pay, was given every year, in addition to the usual public holidays.

Conscription was confined to men only, but he had been informed by the British Ministry of Labour that persons sent by the Northern Ministry to national work in Great Britain would be regarded as residing there for a temporary purpose only and would, therefore, not be liable to be called up for service with the armed forces.

Newmarket To-day

Crown Colony Fancied For Cesarewitch

THERE will be more than twenty runners for the Cesarewitch Stakes at Newmarket to-day, and the race has a more open appearance than for many years. The top-weights, Longriggan and Germanicus, have been most consistent and are possessed of better speed than the majority of their rivals, but at the weights may not cope with several of them. Mazarin may also be too high in the handicap to succeed. He is game and undoubtedly the best three-year-old in the race, but has had a hard season. Of O. Bell's pair, Verbatim has won over the course and distance, but Filator is also well fancied. He won easily over one and a half miles at the last meeting, and is bred to stay. Crown colony has good form over the distance, and has been well backed.

Sir Pomm, runner-up to Hunter's Moon IV. last year, may be the best of the Northern horses, but Hamac is consistent and will not be troubled by the distance. Longships has encouraged hopes of a Royal win by impressive gallops, in one of which he easily accounted for Royalist, and may have to be reckoned with. Valentin holds a bright chance on his win over two miles at Manchester, and Abbeville, Lupercus, Jennydang and Botwood should carry their light weights prominently.

Longships will require a lot of beating, but preference is for

and Verbatim is taken as the best of the others. Selections:—

Experto Crede Gets Vote For Nursery Handicap

A VERY successful season's racing at Phœnix Park will be brought to a conclusion with this afternoon's meeting, which starts at 3 o'clock. The Nursery Handicap sets a nice problem for backers. Queen's Eyot and Experto Crede must be close together wherever they finish, and such as Terrible Times, China Tealeaf, Ensor, Vienna and Phelim Brady have strong claims for consideration. In the belief that Experto Crede is a very much improved horse, he is named as the likely winner.

Barnhill, who was disqualified after finishing first in a mile handicap at Leopardstown, looks to be the obvious choice for the Wicklow Handicap, and Cardinal Wolsey should make amends for a series of failures by winning the Waterville Maiden Plate. Selections:—

Waterville Plate—Cardinal Wolsey.
Whitehall Plate—Goldstream.
Wicklow Flat Race—Barnhill.
Nursery Plate—Experto Crede.
Woodenbridge Plate—Fontenoy.
Westport Plate—Red Strife.
TOTE DOUBLE:

Waterville Plate—Cedargrove.

Racing Gossip

Hurdle Racer May Win Irish Cesarewitch

BY OUR RACING CORRESPONDENT.

THE closing meeting of the season at the Curragh next Saturday should provide racing of very attractive character. The Irish Cesarewitch, with thirty-six acceptors, gives backers a nice problem to deal with, but, as so often happens in instances, they probably will solve the problem, and the horse they make favourite either will win or be thereabouts. Cameron, second to The Gripper last year, has to carry 12lb. more on this occasion, which is about the normal improvement expected in a horse between his third and fourth years, and it would not surprise me if Lord Rothermere's colt went one better than last year and scored. The Gripper beat him by half a length, but the placings might have been reversed had not the rider of Cameron lost his whip during the course of the race.

A Testing Course

The Irish Cesarewitch, unlike the big English back-end handicap, frequently has been won by steeplechasers and hurdlers, and there are many leader of this class engaged in this year's event. The Gripper could not be said to have had any greater claims to consideration twelve months ago than has St. Martin this year. A Red Cross Steeplechase and Gallinule winner, with 9st. 2lb. on his back, must be a strong contender in a test such as the mile and six furlongs course at the Curragh affords. Golden Jack is another for which a strong case can be made, and Grant, who won a hurdle race at Baldoyle last Saturday in easy fashion, and in excellent time, must enter into calculations. It appears, however, that Grant's stable companion, Tom Mix, will be the better fancied candidate, and, if so, it would be foolish to oppose Mr. F. E. Barry's horse.

Bearer Bond, Bold Maid, and Winiwar are all strong tips, and it looks as if the market will be of an open kind, with, possibly, odds of 6 to 1 the field being offered.

Staying ability is absolutely necessary for a horse with pretensions to win over the course, and one that I think has this quality is Mrs. M. J. Mitchell's Amor de Cuba.

Fancy for Amor de Cuba

Over a long period of watching races, I never saw a horse make up so much ground in the last half-mile as did Amor de Cuba when he won this year's Galway Hurdle. He was absolutely last at the foot of the hill on the far side of the course, but, efficiently ridden by T. Hyde, he came past those in front of him stride by stride to eventually win in comfortable style by a couple of lengths from Swindon Beauty, with Antrim, the favourite, three-parts of a length off, third.

It is interesting to compare the weights of Antrim and Amor de Cuba. In the Galway Hurdle Amor de Cuba was in receipt of 14lb. and next Saturday he carries 17lb., which shows what an excellent chance he has. Amor de Cuba is my choice for the Irish Cesarewitch, and, if Grant is next to the post, I would name him as the best outsider.

It is a pity that Fair Crystal is not amongst the entries for the Beresford Stakes, as, if he were, we would have the opportunity of getting a reliable line on his merits by comparison with Windsor Slipper. An effort to make a match between the pair fell through, but if Fair Crystal is in the form he was last year, we should come on, I, for one, would not say that it would be a one-sided affair. Fair Crystal, in my opinion, has come on anything from 10lb. to 14lb. since his memorable win at the Phœnix Plate.

Closing of Entries

Entries close to-day with Mr. P. Harold Clarke, 9 Hume street, Dublin, for races at the Leopardstown Second November meeting, and five two-year-old races to be run at the Curragh in 1942.

Munster Hurling Final Looks Good for Cork

(by BAT'O.)

CORK and Tipperary, who each have won 12 All-Ireland finals, clash for the coveted Munster Championship at Limerick on Sunday next. Cork are favourites, as their brilliant hurling in league and championships entitles them to be, but they meet their stoutest opponents of like year now—their traditional rivals since 1884.

Tipperary hit a barren patch since their one-sided victory at Killarney in 1937, where Kilkenny collapsed, yet there are scores of flourishing hurling clubs in the county to-day. Cattle disease in Mullinahone and Ballingarry kept Tipperary out of intercounty work all summer, but it did not interfere with inter-club activities in Mid and North Tipperary, where their hurling talent lies. Within recent weeks Boherlahan Thurles and Roscrea clubs treated spectators to thrilling hurling in the closing stages of the championship. The fifteen that beat a fast Waterford side in June last year are all available, and Tipperary selectors, who have discussed the matter with me, make no secret of their confidence of lowering Cork's colours at Limerick.

This pitch on the Ennis road has been unlucky for Cork. They have met their most unexpected defeats there—from Clare, Limerick and Tipperary, in cup and championship. The ball will have slowed down a lot since September, and the turf at Limerick suits Tipperary's long-swinging style when the ball sits up well. Cork like a fiery pitch, close-cropped; the faster the ball moves the better for Leeside hurling. Tipperary like a sod which their studs grip well, and which gives opportunity for those reckless rushes close to goal that distinguish the Tubberadora men.

A Great Record

The "form book" points to a ready Cork win. Their team have knit together over three years' experience in league and championship. They have only known one defeat in two years, have played 34 major games in three years, and have won 32—a formidable record. They have trained for their Tipperary appointment, and their defeat will be a big surprise. Despite O'Donnell's inspiring leadership, I think Tipperary will lack Cork's polish. Heavy rain would help the challengers, for Cork's most expensive lapses were on muddy pitches.

Despite their lean season, Kildare retain their football glamour. When the revived Oireachtas Council searched for teams to open the 1941 festival they wisely selected Dublin and Kildare. Only a point separated them early this year, and both counties have made careful selections for next Sunday's gold medal game at Croke Park. Dowling, Mulhall, Brosnan, Geraghty and Ryan make a fine framework for Kildare's new players. Dublin will field a dozen of the side that drew with Kerry. Crone, an Army junior, comes on at left-full in Leavy's place, and there is a generous sprinkling of Geraldines, Saggard, Clana and Civil Service men on the side. This game should provide a close finish, with plenty of good football. Proceedings will open with a parade of massed pipe bands.

Towards the Caucasus

Although Moscow has been placed in a state of siege, there seems to be no reason to anticipate its early fall. General von Bock may have succeeded in a partial encirclement of the Soviet capital; but even the Germans themselves admit that the city still is capable of fierce and sustained resistance, and some of the more sober newspapers deprecate premature rejoicings. According to the latest Russian bulletins, Germany's carefully-prepared attack on Moscow has been "broken." Just what this statement means it is impossible to say. A few days ago it was announced that General Zhukov had been appointed Supreme Commander of Russian Defence Forces, operating between 60 and 75 miles from Moscow, and that the defence of the approaches to the city had been entrusted to Lieutenant-General Artemyev. What is certain is that Moscow has not yet fallen; that Russian resistance is as fierce as ever it was, and that the siege of the Russian capital has not yet begun in earnest. It must be remembered that Odessa withstood a siege of sixty days. Leningrad has been beleaguered for fifty-three days; and there is no reason to suppose that Moscow will be a less tough nut to crack than either of her sister cities. Indeed, comment in the German newspapers suggests that Herr Hitler's High Command does not regard either Moscow or Leningrad as a main objective. The real purpose of the German offensive seems to be an advance in the south towards the Caucasus. In this sector the Germans claim to have captured the city of Taganrog, as well as Stalino, "one of the most important arms centres in the Donetz Basin," some eighty miles to the north-west. The Russians deny that either of these cities has been taken, but admit that their forces have "retired to previously prepared positions under pressure of a numerically superior enemy." Not only the Germans, but also the Italians, have been attacking in this area. The Italian newspapers are more communicative than the Germans; and, according to Milan's Corriere della Sera, Signor Mussolini's troops were forced to wade through two feet of mud in their approach to Stalino. Italian commentators declare that important victories have been won in Russia, but make no secret of the fact that a heavy price has been, and is being, paid. It is a bewildering situation, which is changing so rapidly that no layman could keep track of it. Nobody seems to know what is happening at Leningrad. In a review of the campaign, the Germans claim that since August 16th Marshal von Leeb has made 300,000 prisoners, has destroyed 1,581 tanks, and more than 4,000 guns. On the other hand, Leningrad admittedly remains in Russian hands, and it is reported that Soviet troops have been landing behind the German lines in rowing boats, in spite of Berlin's assurance that the Baltic has been cleared of all resistance.

The one thing that has been proved conclusively by this terrible war is that predictions of all kinds are thoroughly futile. Whenever the military experts have hazarded guesses regarding Herr Hitler's intentions, they have been hopelessly wrong. They never were more at fault than in their estimates of Russia's powers of resistance. Yet the war is still in progress, although less than a week ago it was announced that Marshal Timoshenko's armies had been put out of action, and that Marshal Voroshilov's forces were encircled in the neighbourhood of Leningrad. In these circumstances, it looks as if one person's guess is as good as another's. The experts apparently are just as much in the dark as the rawest tyro in military affairs, and the Russian enigma has baffled even the experienced brains of the German High Command. There can be no doubt, however, that the losses on both sides in Russia have been terrific. In the nature of military things, the attacker's losses generally are heavier than those of the defender. German estimates of Russia's losses are stupendous; and, even if the Germans have lost only half as much as their opponents, the striking force of the Wehrmacht to-day must be considerably less than it was at the beginning of June. Even if the Germans have lost two million first-line troops in the Russian campaign, they still probably have some six million men at their disposal; and, therefore, are well able to launch a major offensive against the Caucasus, and, eventually, against the Middle East. There have been rumours recently of strong reinforcements for General Rommel's armies in Libya. General von Rundstedt is advancing with relentless energy in the neighbourhood of the Sea of Azov, and, although the Russians are believed to have established their forces in strength in the Crimea, there is reason to expect an early attack on the Caucasus. For some time past the British have been preparing for a campaign of this kind. From Cyrenaica to the borders of Afghanistan they have been massing troops in defence of the Iranian oilfields, while the Russians are reported to have strong forces waiting in the Caucasus in the event of an attack. Whether or not Moscow should fall in the near future; whether or not Leningrad should continue to defy the assaults of Marshal von Leeb's armies, the probability is that most of the really serious fighting during the next few months will take place in the south. If Herr Hitler could manage to seize the Caucasian oilfields during the winter months his position would be formidable in the spring. In any case, there seems to be no hope of peace this year. As matters stand at present, the war might continue almost indefinitely.

The Healy Case

The essentials of yesterday's curious debate in the British House of Commons are simple. Mr. Morrison, the Home Secretary, believes that Mr. J. McGovern, Independent Labour Party member for the Shettleston division of Glasgow, if permitted to visit Northern Ireland, might cross into Southern Ireland. Many members of the House—who include Sir Hugh O'Neill, a Northern Ireland Conservative representative—argue that Mr. Morrison's views have nothing to do with the case. Their doctrine is clear: as a member of Parliament, Mr. McGovern has a traditional right to go where he likes—at least within the bounds of the United Kingdom—and to investigate any abuses that he may desire. The issue, in fact, was between expediency and principle. This is a British quarrel, and we can have no more than an academic interest in it. What we are at liberty to regret is that the larger issue—that of Mr. Cahir Healy's detention—did not occupy an equal share of the House of Commons' time. Mr. Cahir Healy, member for Tyrone and Fermanagh in the Northern House of Commons, has been detained in Brixton prison for a matter of fourteen weeks. No charge has been specified against him; no charge need be specified, for that matter, under the Defence Regulation under which he was arrested. There is no question of the British Government's right to detain him: it possesses that right, if it has reason to believe that his conduct was in any respect prejudicial to the safety of the United Kingdom; for a member of Parliament does not cease to be a citizen, or to be subject to the law. There is, however, a question of tradition. Many members—especially, as it seems, Conservatives—hold that Mr. Churchill's Government would do well to show some special respect for the person of a member of Parliament, and ought either to make formal charges against Mr. Healy, or, at any rate, to state the grounds on which he is being held. We are inclined to agree with them. The influence of the Executive tends to increase at the expense of Parliament in time of war, and this shift of power is particularly noticeable in Great Britain at present. Surely, however, it is desirable that every effort should be made to preserve even the appearance of Parliament's supremacy. The detention of Mr. Cahir Healy, and the Home Secretary's refusal of a travel permit to Mr. McGovern, have alarmed many English people who disapproved strongly of those gentlemen's political views, because these actions imply a lessening of Parliament's traditional privileges. The arrest of a company director, or the refusal of a travel permit to a newspaper correspondent, causes no particular disquietude; but something almost akin to divinity hedges the long traditions of the British Parliament, and is reflected in the shorter tradition of the Parliament of Northern Ireland. Which is the greater danger—that the formulation of charges against Mr. Cahir Healy might give away some dangerous information, or that the British people should begin to look upon their Legislature as subordinate to their Government?

A Poetry Theatre

The modern revival of verse drama and verse speaking began in this country with the experiments of a few poets, actors and enthusiasts in small hall and concert room. These experiments led to the establishment of our folk theatre, and had their imaginative reverberations in other countries. Dr. Gordon Bottomley, in an important article on Voice and Stage, in the current number of the Dublin Magazine, pays a tribute to our poetic stage tradition, but he asks why our poets did not concentrate on giving us a repertory of poetic drama comparable with the prose realistic drama which has followed the start given to it by Synge and Lady Gregory. The question is just and timely. Dr. Gordon Bottomley himself has developed an original form of narrative drama, which has affinities with the later dance dramas of W. B. Yeats. Moreover, he has written an entire cycle of lyric and choric plays in which he has explored the imaginative past of Scotland. In its aim and range his dramatic work might well suggest possibilities to our younger poets here. Fortunately, we have not entirely forsaken the poetic tradition which gave us so much at the beginning of the century. We still have, even in our prose drama, a keen sense of the value of words and of their tonal possibilities. Nevertheless, our prose drama has tended more and more to provoke easy laughter and to cast away serious responsibilities. Only imaginative poetic drama can restore the standards which we are in danger of losing, and give us back those moods of spiritual intensity which we lack. The time seems opportune, and there is certainly an awakening interest in spoken poetry, but our Irish poets must write the plays. Fortunately, the theatre of poetry does not demand elaborate, expensive sets. With poetry the voice is the actor's main instrument. He acts with his voice, as he does not in a colloquial play, and his surroundings should free him by imaginative suggestion. Even indirectly poetic drama has its influence. Only a speaker who knows what to do with Hamlet's lines can succeed, for instance, with the speeches of the Vision of Hell in Shaw's "Man and Superman." It is possible that Shaw is really a poet incognito. At any rate, he has the poet's awareness that he must write vocally for the stage.

PROTECTING NORTHERN WORKERS

Proposing an amendment to the Workmen's Compensation Bill in the Northern Parliament with the object of safeguarding Six County workers injured in Eire while working for Northern firms, Mr. T. J. Campbell, K.C. (Nat.), said that the bill should cover any resident in Northern Ireland employed by a Six County employer carrying out any contracts anywhere in Ireland. At present, if a workman made a contract of service with a Northern Ireland employer, and then went to work for him in Dublin, he would not come under the Act. If the worker was, unfortunately, killed, his dependants would receive no compensation. Eire workers were in a different position, because if they came to Northern Ireland or went to Canada to work, they carried with them their full rights under the Workmen's Compensation Acts.

The amendment was rejected, and the bill passed through all its stages.

CHURCH OF IRELAND

The Bishop of Cork has appointed the Rev. Pearce C. Brown, M.A., Rector of Templebreedy, to the Canonry of Dromdaleague, in St. Fin Barre's, Cork, and of Island in St. Fachtna's, Ross, vacant through the resignation of the Rev. Canon G. T. Levis.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

MR. ERNEST BROWN'S announcement that the maternal mortality rate per thousand births for 1940 was 2.61 indicates a new low level, all the more meritorious in war-time. The 1937 figure was 3.13, the 1938 2.98, and the 1939 2.82. The little-known Plaistow Hospital has had the magnificent record of only losing six out of 13,327 mothers in four years, one-seventh of the national rate. It covers the whole of West Ham district, and serves the teeming Thames dockland.

Irish Stores for Scotland

Mr. R. S. Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, reveals that Scotland will be the destination of the small number of Irish store cattle being exported in the first few weeks. The shortage there is even more acute than in Norfolk. He thinks it may well be nearly Christmas before any appreciable number of Irish stores begin to flow into the eastern counties.

Stalin's Armoured Train

The report that Stalin is directing the defence of Moscow from an armoured train, recalls Trotsky's armoured train in the days following the revolution twenty years ago. He used it as a travelling G.H.Q., political platform, printing press, administration office, and dormitory. It ran for three years and survived bombing, shelling, and a wrecking twice, thanks to the thirty picked machine gunners which he carried.

More Women for the Factories

Women born in 1913 will sign on for war-work at the Labour Exchanges on Saturday. As in the case of Irishmen, Irish women who have been less than two years in England are exempt from registration. About 40 per cent. of those who register will be expected to join the women's services or work in the munition factories. It is now believed that Mr. Bevin's registrations of women will ultimately go to the 35s, if not higher. The London Passenger Transport Board now announce that they have raised the age limit for women 'bus conductors to 40. This is one of the few jobs where women are paid the same rate—£4 5s. a week—as the men they replace. But running up and down the nine steps for eight hours a day is no joke. Some women are employed driving buses into position in L.P.T.B. garages, but none on the open road.

Hot Midday Meal

Lord Woolton's announcement to-day that another 100,000 school meals a day would be immediately provided from local cooking depôts, making 400,000 in all, has received a very warm welcome. Children generally will be able to get a good meal for 4d., but sometimes the price will be as low as a penny. In addition, some hundreds of thousands of other children eat at war emerg

MURDER CHARGE

EVIDENCE FROM COUNTY SLIGO

THE hearing of the charge of the murder of Mary Brehony (39), spinster, of Rossmore, Co. Sligo, on April 17 last, against Patrick Kelly (31), Riverstown, Co. Sligo, was continued in the Central Criminal Court, Dublin, yesterday. The body of the woman was found on the morning of April 18 in a stream near her home She had been strangled.

Mr. R. McLoughlin, K.C., and Mr. G. D. Murnaghan (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted, and Barra O Briain and Mr. O. D. Fogarty (instructed by Mr. James O'Doherty, solicitor, Sligo) defended.

William Crevin, Riverstown, said that between 6 and 7 p.m. (old time) Kelly asked him for his bicycle to go to Clooneen. Kelly went away without the bicycle. He was wearing a blue overcoat. Next day the witness, in the bog, said to Kelly that Mary Brehony had been drowned. Kelly made no reply and did not seem surprised.

James Baker (14) said that on the evening before the body was found he saw Kelly coming from the direction of Crevin's house. The next day witness asked Kelly was it he whom his (witness's) brother Tommy and sister May had seen in Cooper's Hill Wood between 8 and 9 the night before. Kelly said he had not been in that part of the wood. May had said that she saw a man there. Tommy had not seen him. There was a story for the past two years that a man was to be seen in the wood.

CONVERSATION AT MIDNIGHT

Michael J. Baker, farmer, Kelly's employer, said that Kelly had shown no surprise on April 18, when told that the woman had been found drowned. Mrs. Baker later remarked that tracks had been found near the river. Kelly complained about a brad in his shoe, and worked with a penknife at the shoe for about twenty minutes. Some days later Kelly remarked that false statements were being made against him. The witness was standing at his own door at midnight on April 17, when Kelly came by and said that he had been lifting snares on Clooneen, Cooper's Hill.

John McHugh and Patrick Jinks said that they were in Riverstown on the evening of April 17, and did not see Kelly.

Thomas Tivlan said that about 11 p.m. (Old Time) on April 17 Kelly came to his house and said he was coming from Clooneen.

Patrick Sheerin, Riverstown, said that he met Kelly coming from Tivlan's house, and Kelly said that he had been lifting snares at Charleton's Hill. Witness, some time after the finding of the body, had found a handkerchief in a field and had given it to the Guards. The same kind of handkerchief could be bought in shops in Riverstown, and was worn by many of the young men in their breast pockets on Sundays.

Mrs. Mary Baker said that on April 17 Kelly came to her house at midnight and spoke to her husband, saying that he had come from Cooper's Hill. Next day she brought the dinner to her husband in the field. Kelly was there, and made no remark when she mentioned Mary Brehony's death. Her husband had already heard of it. Mary (her daughter) had told her the night before that she was afraid of a man in the wood, but Tommy said that May had said it to get her (witness) down to catch the pony. Tommy had seen nobody in the wood.

May Baker (16) said that she had not seen a man in the wood.

Michael Flaherty said that, a few days after the body was found, Kelly told him that the Guards were after him (Kelly). Kelly said how could he have done it when he was in Ardcumber Wood at 9 o'clock. When Kelly was in jail witness called to see him, and Kelly asked him to remind Josie Baker that the two children had seen him in the wood that night.

POLICE EVIDENCE

Sergeant W. Halloran, Riverstown, said that Kelly had told Superintendent Devine that he was not in Rossmore for about three months. Kelly was willing to submit to a medical examination, and he was taken to Dr. Kilfeather. Later that night he found Kelly in a cattle shed. He asked Kelly for his overcoat, and Kelly produced it from under hay in a manger.

The case was adjourned until 10.30 this morning.

GATE THEATRE

"THE DEVIL'S DISCIPLE"

THIS comic melodrama, belonging to Shaw's middle period, always revives well. Already it must have been seen in Dublin more often than almost any other of his plays, and still it is always welcome. It has a long tradition of good acting associated with it here, as elsewhere, for it is full of the stuff that actors love—movement, rich characterisation, the full scene of which they may take complete possession when their moments come.

It is one of the plays with which the great dramatist carried the player over with him from the kind of theatre which he was already making a thing of the past into the theatre which was soon to feel, one after another, the powerful shocks of his genius, while he made of play and player together something wholly new. It moves in its course from the situations of old drama to the kind of perfection of scene and character which we mean when we say "Shavian" to describe an art that is peculiarly his own.

It contains some of his first promise of what he was going to do with history as material for ironic comedy. The scene with General Burgoyne and Major Swindon in the Council Chamber was already a masterpiece in that direction. The method, as somebody has put it, consisted in rubbing as much as possible of the patina of time from historical character, and revealing the bright modern colour underneath. That was why, last night at the Gate, the talk of "Gentlemanly Johnny" Burgoyne to Major Swindon, in 1777, was as fresh and pointed as if they were discussing certain military matters of to-day. The scene was filled very finely, indeed, by Blake Gifford as the General, and by Michael Ripper as the Major. The General is such a grand part that it almost plays itself, but that of the Major has to be done, just as it was done, with an unforced suggestion of its rich humour.

This performance all round showed a big advance upon a fairly recent production of the play at the Gate. Ronald Ibbs adds to Dick Dudgeon's stature and his own by a more finished rendering of the part. Vivien Dillon, in a new kind of part for her, gave a splendid piece of character acting as Mrs. Dudgeon, while Hamlyn Benson and Cathleen Delaney made an excellent acting pair as Pastor Anderson and his pretty wife. Two other parts which stood out in the long cast were the Essie of Deirdre O'Meara and the Christy of John Biggerstaff.

NEW STORY OF THE FALL OF CALAIS

OUTNUMBERED DEFENDERS' HEROIC FIGHT

AN unofficial account of the fall of Calais by Major Eric Linklater, R.E., which was issued yesterday, is a vital complement of the operations detailed in the Gort despatches issued last week.

On May 22, the British Expeditionary Force was retiring westward from the River Escaut, it states, and the German armoured troops, moving rapidly towards the coast from an area between Albert and Cambrai, had already cut the lines of communication with its principal bases of supply. The danger of this happening had been apparent for some little time, and it was decided that Calais might be used as an alternative base. A small force had, therefore, been ordered to proceed there, to hold the port open and establish communication with Dunkirk. The Calais force, commanded by Brigadier C. Nicholson, consisted of the 3rd Battalion The Royal Tank Regiment, a battalion of the 60th Rifles, a battalion of the Queen Victoria's Rifles, and a battalion of the Rifle Brigade. It landed on May 22 and May 23.

While two supply ships carrying vehicles, equipment, ammunition and stores were being unloaded on the evening of May 23, hospital trains carrying wounded men were also arriving in the town, and a multitude of civilian refugees clamoured for entry. At intervals the harbour was lightly shelled, which affected the work of the stevedores. The supply ships returned to England on the morning of May 24, taking about 1,600 non-combatants and 400 wounded, but one of them in the rush and confusion could not be completely unloaded, and the Rifle Brigade, in consequence, were to suffer a grave shortage of ammunition and equipment.

PLAN OF DEFENCE

The fighting troops who remained for the defence of Calais numbered approximately 3,000 English and 800 French. They were assisted by two destroyers patrolling off-shore, and they had intermittent air support. Calais, in plan, somewhat resembles a plum. The old town, or Calais Nord, with its wharves and narrow streets and the ancient citadel, is the stone, and the large new town, or Calais Sud, is the flesh of the plum. Brigadier Nicholson's plan of defence was to hold the plum by an outer perimeter closely surrounding it, from which, if it became necessary, he could retire to an inner perimeter surrounding the stone.

The outer perimeter was manned by the 60th and the Rifle Brigade—the former on the side towards Boulogne, the latter on the eastern side, where a company of Queen Victoria's Rifles held the road to Dunkirk. Nicholson's first task was to try to open the road to Dunkirk, and about two o'clock on Friday morning a supply column went out, escorted by two infantry companies and a detachment of the Tank Battalion. But it met strong enemy forces about three miles out and had to retire.

HARD FIGHTING

Throughout Friday, the 24th, there was hard fighting all along the outer perimeter, and the town was bombarded from the south-east and the south-west. Many fires were started and shell-fire cut the water mains. Snipers of the German Fifth Column, who had come in with the torrent of refugees, were active in the streets. In the early afternoon it was reported that 200 German tanks were advancing from Wissant on the Boulogne road. Of the British tanks only six now remained in action. At three o'clock the attack became very heavy, and it grew evident that the outer perimeter could not long be held. But the defence of the perimeter was stubborn, and the attackers were well punished.

When darkness fell it was decided to withdraw to the inner perimeter. Nicholson made his headquarters in the citadel, and the shorter perimeter was held throughout Saturday, the 25th. The Germans threw into the attack the whole weight of two Panzer divisions. Fighting grew fiercer as the day went on, and from three o'clock till six in the afternoon the bombardment was concentrated. The last message from Nicholson—he had a wireless-telephone transmitting set—was received in Dover at half past four. His greatest need was guns, he said.

TIRED TROOPS

But the stubborn remnants of his garrison were short of food and water, and ammunition, too. The weather was hot, and they were very tired. But their spirits were high, and when 300 men of the Rifle Brigade, isolated on one of the quays were called upon to surrender the demand was contemptuously rejected. The Rifle Brigade fought for another twenty hours before they were overpowered.

At half an hour before midnight of Saturday the War Office sent Nicholson the following message:—"Every hour you continue to exist is of greatest help to B.E.F. The Government has, therefore, decided you must continue to fight. Have greatest possible admiration for your splendid stand."

"That was the new and unexpected purpose which the defenders of Calais were now serving," the report continues. "The Germans were in a fever of impatience to take the town and with their Panzer divisions to strike to Dunkirk and enclose our retreating army. But the riflemen were holding that deadly sweep. The tip of the scythe had struck a stone.

SURRENDER REFUSED

"At eight o'clock on Sunday morning a flag of truce was passed through our lines and Nicholson was presented with a request for his surrender. He refused. At nine o'clock the bombardment began again and wave after wave of dive-bombers attacked the citadel, the quays and the blazing streets of the old town. We had no tanks left and the off-shore destroyers and our air attacks were only at intervals able to counter-bombard and neutralise the German batteries. Our defensive positions fell in ruins and the enemy used his tanks in close fighting from street to street.

"By four o'clock the Germans had occupied all the harbour area and overpowered what was left of the Rifle Brigade. By five o'clock the citadel, which was mainly held by French troops, had surrendered and Nicholson was a prisoner. By six o'clock the remnants of the 60th were surrounded. They had been joined that Sunday afternoon by the company of Queen Victoria's Rifles which had been holding Sangatte, and, miraculously fighting its way from there, had now come into the inferno of Calais Nord. When night fell, they and the last of the 60th divided into small parties, hoping to make their way by darkness through the enemy's lines. But there was no darkness. Too many fires were burning and the Germans were on all sides. Again on Monday morning the Germans bombarded the town.

THE END

"Our air reconnaissance could discover no movement of British troops, but small parties in ruined houses may have been holding out. The Germans were cautious and weary, too. They were too tired to mop-up effectively, and on Monday night an electric torch flashing from the outer pier sent a message to a patrolling ship. The vessel entered the harbour and took off forty-seven men. A naval landing-party made search of the Avant Port, but encountered only the challenge of German sentries. The defence of Calais had come to an end."—(Press Association.)

"SPREADING THE NEWS"

On the 11th October we published a series of photographs entitled, "Spreading the News," which depicted the life of the news vendors in Dublin. Among the photographs was one which was described as "A Well-known Dublin 'Shopper.' He has a wooden leg, and is busy saving up for a new one."

We are informed that Mr. Michael McDermott, of 55 Bargy road, Dublin, takes exception to the wording which described this photograph. By an unfortunate error, it was made to apply to the photograph of Mr. McDermott, whereas, in fact, it ought to have been applied to another photograph.

We are sorry for any inconvenience or annoyance that may have been caused to Mr. McDermott as a result of this mistake.

THE PRICE OF HERRINGS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In to-day's Irish Times it is reported that fishermen at Rosslare have agreed upon a flat rate of £1 5s. 0d. per mease for this season's catch. The price hitherto had been £1 per mease of 500 herrings—about one halfpenny each. Herrings have been sold at threepence-halfpenny each for some months past. The high price of this fish cannot be due to cost of transport from Wexford, as when the herring kindly swims into Dublin Bay the price does not alter.

Fish merchants say that the Irish do not like fish, yet fail to realise that fish is too expensive.

Some years ago the Vegetarian Restaurant in College street provided customers with a luscious grilled "ersatz" herring. This, with coffee and bread and butter, cost sixpence. With so many substitute foodstuffs on sale, it should not be impossible for some clever citizens to produce a nice substitute herring at one penny each. It would prove a boon to all, including the unfortunate fish merchants.—Yours, etc.,

MURDER CHARGE

SHIP'S COOK ACCUSED

William James Martin (35), ship's cook, of Carnlough, County Antrim, was remanded for nine days at Londonderry yesterday, charged with the murder of Second Engineer Patrick Browne (48), of Batt street, Wexford, by stabbing him with a carving knife.

Police stated at the inquest before the hearing that they heard cries of "police" from a collier in the blackout, and saw Martin jump on to the quay with a suitcase. He said: "I had a bit of a squabble with the second engineer. He was taking me down to give me a doing."

The inquest was adjourned indefinitely.

At the police court the Chief Engineer said that he heard an argument and the words "thief" and "stores" being exchanged between Martin and Browne. Browne was always grousing at Martin.

Head Constable Jackson said that Martin, who was very upset about Browne's death, stated that he went to speak to Browne about missing stores, and by chance had the carving knife in his hand. When Browne rushed at him he did not mean to strike him with the knife, but to frighten him.

JOINT DIOCESAN SYNODS

DR. BARTON'S PLEA FOR RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

THE prospect of the religious education of young people in this country being seriously affected by lack of funds was forecast by the Archbishop of Dublin, the Most Rev. A. W. Barton, D.D., in his presidential address at the meeting of the Joint Synod of Dublin, Glendalough and Kildare, in Dublin yesterday.

The Archbishop said that the balance of £183 for the transport of children would be exhausted during the present year, and the deficiency in the transport fund would have to be defrayed out of the annual income of the board. This would mean either that the dioceses would have to raise an annual income of £250, or that the work of school inspection would have to be carried out in a much less efficient manner. The board would be unable to pay a whole-time inspector of religious instruction. The transport of children to Protestant schools had cost the Board of Education a sum of £258 during 1940. There would only be £183 left towards a similar expenditure in 1941, and nothing for 1942 from the originally voted fund.

"Owing to our system of religious instruction in the primary schools which has been developed in past years the young people of our Church have been given a ground-work of knowledge both of the Bible and the Prayer-Book which compares favourably with that of other bodies," said the Archbishop. "In all the branches of Church work there is nothing of more vital importance to the very life of our Church than the maintenance and improvement of this standard."

It was important that members of the Church who emigrated should have a knowledge and a faith that would enable them to stand strong in the service of their Church and of God. Those who remained at home would, he hoped, take an increasing part in the public life of their country.

The Archbishop recorded his gratification at the decision to erect a church at Crumlin, and stated that the church walls were already rising from the foundations.

PLIGHT OF THE POOR

There would be nothing to be gained by any reference by him to world affairs, said the Archbishop, though there were things which cried aloud for utterance. They in Eire might have to endure the major horrors of war, and were warned that there might be real privation in the poorer parts of this city during the cold days of the coming winter. He could not tell whether such efforts as had been made to prepare food and fuel against such days were adequate or not: he prayed that they might be and that no effort would be spared to ensure that supplies might be stored in readiness. There was already much distress. The Secretary of one of the Church societies for the relief of distress told him that the funds of that society were quite inadequate to meet the present appeals for help. It had been suggested that if the wealthy parishes would make a special effort to provide for the needs of the poor of their own congregations, both as to cash grants and fuel supplies, it would remove some of the heavy burden from the Association.

An encouraging feature of the past year was the increased spirit of co-operation. When the Muintir na Tire movement was started he urged the clergy and laity of the Church to co-operate with the promoters of the movement, and to act, when asked to do so, on Parish Councils. He had been assured that in many places this movement had led to a new spirit of fellowship, and much useful social service work had been done. The same spirit had been developed in connection with A.R.P., the L.D.F., the Red Cross, turf schemes and other public services. It might be that out of the shared anxieties and shared efforts of the present there might come a revelation of the possibility and joy of working together for the common weal without any sacrifice of the principles of their faith.

LICENCES OF MARRIAGE

The Legal Committee, under the chairmanship of Mr. G. FitzGibbon, K.C., had carefully investigated the difficulties connected with licences of marriage in Unions of Parishes, and, on its advice, a form had been drawn up, whereby it was possible for a resident in a Union of Parishes to be married in any one of the churches within that Union.

The Diocesan Missionary Council, in their report, urged that the Church of Ireland should not be content with peace-time standards, either of intercession or financial contributions, in view of the acute need of aid for mission work overseas. It was noted that parochial contributions showed a decrease of £235, compared with those of last year.

The Church of Ireland Temperance and Social Service Society reported that during 1940 Eire had spent £12,054,020 on drink—the equivalent of £4 1s. 4d. per head. The most effective way of dealing with this evil was to teach the young the injurious effect of alcohol upon the health.

The Society expressed gratification that schemes for the provision of fuel by obtaining supplies of turf, and the provision of meals to the poor by means of community kitchens had been projected.

According to the report there has been no diminution in the evils of betting and gambling.

The report was adopted, and the Synod adjourned until 11.30 to-day.

TO-DAY'S AGENDA

To-day's meeting of the Joint Diocesan Synod will be preceded by Morning Prayer and litany at 10.45 in Christ Church Cathedral. The agenda is as follows:—

The meeting will be opened with reading a portion of Holy Scripture and prayer at 11.30 o'clock a.m.

The lay Synodsmen who have not already done so will sign the Declaration of Church Membership required by the Statute (Constit. ch. ii., sec. 14) before taking their seats.

(N.B.—Those who signed in 1939 or 1940, or already this session, need not sign again.)

The minutes of the meeting held on 23rd October, 1940, to be confirmed.

Election of one Member (lay) of the Representative Church Body.

Election of auditor for year ending 31st December, 1941.

Report of the Diocesan Board of Education.

Report of the Diocesan Re-union Committee.

Election of a Diocesan Re-union Committee.

NOTICES OF MOTION.

Rev. Canon C. R. Kitching.—"That in accordance with the resolution of the General Synod adopted on May 10, 1940, having reference to the Ordination of assistant schoolmasters, this Synod requests the General Synod to fix the amount of the payment to the Superannuation Fund of these clergymen of such sum as the General Synod considers should be contributed."

Archbishop of Dublin, the Very Rev. the Dean of Kildare.—"That whereas the Union of Parishes of Kilcock and Maynooth is contiguous to the Diocese of Meath, and whereas it is expedient that the said Union of Parishes should be transferred to the Diocese of Meath, and whereas the Most Rev. the Lord Archbishop of Dublin and the Most Rev. the Lord Bishop of Meath have given their respective consents to the proposed transfer, and whereas such transfer has been approved of by the respective Diocesan Councils of the Diocese of Glendalough and Kildare and of Meath, it is hereby resolved that a resolution be proposed at the next meeting of the General Synod of the Church of Ireland giving effect to this transfer, subject to the following conditions:—

Rev. Canon J. Powell.—"That the Diocesan Youth Committee be re-elected, and that a sum of £6 be granted to carry out its work, if required."

STOCK MARKET REPORTS

RAILS SOARING IN DUBLIN

Local markets continued to make a cheerful showing on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and price movements again mostly favoured holders. The bulk of attention was centred in the Irish Railway groups. British Industrials remained quiet, but a better tendency was in evidence.

There was good buying of Home Government Funds, and the Fourth National Loan advanced 15/- to 106½, while 4 p.c. Conversion Loan gained 10/- at 110, 4½ p.c. Land Bonds rose to 114½, and the 4 p.c. Bonds to 106½.

Dublin Distillers issues encountered profit-taking pending the meeting. The Ord. gave way to 11/1½, and the "A" to 10/10½. The turnover was not so large as during recent weeks. Guinness Units were quietly supported at 86/6.

Chief interest was centred in the Railway market, and strong support brought about further sharp advances. Great Southern Pref. rose to 10½; the Guaranteed gained 10/-, at 54, and the Deb. spurted 2½ points to 57½. Great Northern Ord. advanced 1½ to 12, and the Pref. was raised a point to 29.

Dublin Transport Ord. tended higher, and Alliance Gas Ord. held 20/-. Batchelor (Ireland) Ord. and Clondalkin Paper Ord. moved in favour of holders, while Carroll Pref. rose to 25/-.

The feature of a small British Industrial group was the strength of Imperial Tobaccos at 119/-, an advance of 1/6 on the day.

STOCK EXCHANGE FEATURES

CANADIAN PACIFIC'S BIG TRAFFIC INCREASE

FROM OUR LONDON FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

How much the London Stock Markets are influenced at present by the nature of the war news is shown by the satisfactory recovery in many of the more active securities since Monday morning, as a result of the reports that the German attack on Moscow has been slowed down.

In spite of some diversion of funds in support of the savings campaign, British Funds have risen well. Since business began on Monday, Consols 2½ p.c., Conversion 2½ p.c., Local Loans and War Loan 3½ p.c. have each appreciated by 10s. per cent. More money is expected to flow into this market as a result of the heavy Government disbursements, but, so far this week, the improvement is due more to the change of sentiment than to an expansion in activity.

Buying of 3½ p.c. War Loan is partly due to the fact that on Monday next the price will be quoted ex the half-dividend payable on December 1. [illegible] demand, and the small [illegible] is partly responsible for some sharp improvements.

Elsewhere, Home Industrials have been quietly firm, but the gains are usually small. A prominent exception is Seager Evans, the price of which has jumped 4s. in two days, on attention drawn to the increased value of the group's large stocks of whiskies.

Another interesting feature has been a rise in Canadian Pacific Ord. on the traffic increase of 1,550,000 dollars for the second week of October, the largest expansion shown this year for a single week. For the eight months to August net earnings rose by nearly 9,000,000 dollars, and many people are hopeful that it will shortly be possible to resume dividend on the Ordinary Stock.

AIRCRAFT PROFITS

The chairman of the Bristol Aeroplane Company says that the company has continued to contribute the maximum of its capacity to the nation's war effort. The balance sheet gives some inkling of the huge turnover, stocks and work in progress appearing at £6,325,621 at 31st December last, against £4,678,382 at the end of 1939. Net trading profit for 1940 was £766,384, or £223,318 less than for 1939. A sum of £10,000 is again added to general reserve and the year's dividend on the Ordinary capital is maintained at 10 p.c., the balance forward being raised from £10,727 to £14,272. Further borrowing from the company's bankers has been necessary, the overdraft of £2,723,315 being £430,000 more than at the beginning of the year.

The report of R. and W. Hawthorn Leslie and Co., engineers and shipbuilders, contains no comment regarding business experience during the year to 30th June last, but that the company is heavily engaged on work of national importance is indicated by an expansion in the item of stocks, stores, work in progress, etc., from £3,703,715 to £4,975,917. Sundry debtors are substantially higher at £118,957 against £47,143. The net profit was £133,471, a reduction of £28,065, but the Ordinary distribution is virtually unchanged, the dividend being maintained at 10 p.c., while the cash bonus on this occasion is 5 p.c., less tax, against 2½ p.c., tax free, last year.

The Decca Record Company experienced a further substantial rise in the cost of manufacture and distribution during the year to 31st March last, while so far no increase in the price of records has been made since the outbreak of war. This may be the chief explanation of the reduction in trading profit from £71,464 for 1939-40 to £64,674 for the past year. The dividend received from the American subsidiary was substantially smaller at £3,901 against £11,793. Net profit declined by £17,560 to £32,580. The Ordinary dividend is maintained at 25 p.c., while the holders of the 10 p.c. Part. Pref. shares again receive a total of 16 p.c. The balance carried forward is £15,207, as compared with £12,244 brought in.

LONDON MORE CONFIDENT

Cheered by the latest news from Russia, operators on the London Stock Markets displayed more confidence yesterday, and, in response to buying on active and wide-spread lines, prices in all sections made further progress.

Outstanding for strength were Gilt-edged securities and Gold shares. Among the former, War Loan 3½ per cent. reached 106⅞, a new high level since 1937. Speculative activity in Far Western Rand Kaffirs assumed substantial proportions, and big gains were established by Western Holdings, Western Reefs and Blyvoors. Oil shares, although less colourful than surrounding groups, showed a rising trend, and numerous firm features were noticeable in the Rail groups, where "Canpacs" figured prominently at 11¼ on the good traffics and hopes of an early resumption of dividends.

Firmness in Industrials were especially marked in the Tobacco, Shipping, Stores, and Alcohol groups, and, among the last-named, Seager Evans followed up their recent rise with a fresh spurt to 23s. 3d.

British Government stocks, led by War Loan, advanced rapidly. Conversion 3½ per cent., Old Consols and Local Loans showed gains ranging up to ⅝.

Foreigners were not materially altered.

British Rails reflected the rising trend of Gilts, and a brisk business was transacted in the Junior stocks. G.W. Ord. jumped another point to 41, and a similar gain occurred by Southern Prefd. L.M.S. Ord. and 1923 Pref. were other bright spots, and Southern Defd. rose ¼ to 14.

In the Foreign Rail section, Argentines tended to sag following the B.A.G.S. report, but Central Uruguay Debs. were in demand at levels well above those ruling on the previous day.

Turnover in Industrials underwent a marked expansion, and among Breweries, Guinness recovered smartly to 87s. In Tobaccos, "Bats" rose to 93s. 9d., and "Imps" to 119s. 4½d. The advance in shipping shares was led by Cunard, which spurted 7½d. to 11s. 10½d. Steels and Motors held their share in the bright features, and Rolls Royce gained no less than 1s. 10½d. to 80s. Principal Rayons and Textiles followed the general trend, and leading Miscellaneous issues, such as Dunlops, Chemicals, and "Emmies" all exhibited strength.

In the Mining Market there was a blaze up in the favourite speculative Gold issues, and prices were already ahead rapidly. Blyvoors put on 1s. 3d. to 31s. 6d., Western Holdings 1s. 7½d. to 18s. 1½d., and Western Reefs 1s. 1½d. to 35s. 3d. These gains were overshadowed, however, by a spurt of 7s. 6d. in West Wits to 108s. The dividend-payers remained quiet, but Crowns recovered to 10½.

In the Oil section the Eagle "Twins" were both made higher, whilst Burmahs advanced to 56s. 3d., and "Shells" to 52s. 6d.

FIRM CLOSE ON WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

The Stock Exchange continued quiet today. While the Russian claims were more hopeful, and the Far Eastern outlook encouraging, speculative sentiment remained subjected to the uncertainties of the international picture, with the inflation idea the prime bolstering agent.

Of the 752 stocks traded in the turnover of 580,000 shares, 379 were higher and 162 were lower.

The market was aided by the sharp rally in the major commodities, and the Oil, Steel and Aircraft divisions were very attractive features. Rails responded to mounting freight loadings and revenues of the main lines, though the rally was moderated by the Brotherhood's rejection of the wage arbitration proposal.

The close was firm.

LEGAL TENDER NOTE FUND

The amount of legal tender notes outstanding on October 18 was £15,514,315 10s., compared with £15,285,589 on October 11. The amount issued during the week was £365,238, and the amount redeemed £126,511 10/-.

LONDON MONEY MARKET

The effect of "Warships Weeks" on the credit situation became more pronounced in lombard Street yesterday. An additional factor making for shortage of credit is the fact that the clearing banks are now entering upon the making-up period. As a result of the two influences the demand for bills sank to very small proportions.

Silver prices remained unchanged at 23½d. for spot and forward.

SALE OF PROPERTY

Satisfactory prices were realised by Albert MacArthur, The Housefinder, at his salerooms yesterday, all four lots being sold, including large city house, 40 Mountjoy square, producing over £200 per annum; choice modern residence, "St. Brigid's," Eden road, Sandycove; 2, 3, 4 St. Mary's avenue, Inchicore, and vacant freehold house, 3 Springhill terrace, Stradbrook road, Blackrock.
